communities' wishes based on need. They should not be "required" to do so against their judgement - judgement they are elected to exercise for their communities.

Cleveland, No, it should be discretionary. The local authorities should determine need, financing and size and type of construction. Read, I would prefer that municipalities provide housing on a voluntary basis. I believe they would if provided with the proper incentive, tax relief in particular.

Would you support increases in State-collected taxes for the purpose of increased aid to cities and towns? Aylmer, yes, but only with guarantees that the cities and towns would receive them! The undue pressures mounting on property taxes require a new taxing approach. I strongly favor Local Aid Fund protection by affording a minimum base below which a town would never drop on reimbursements. Cleveland, No, increased taxes will result in a higher burden on the tax base. Read, I support a graduated income tax as our main source of revenue rather than the property tax. Too many people who retire on a fixed income cannot afford to pay the continual increase in the property tax year after year. Yes, I support increased aid to our cities and towns based on a graduated income tax.

Would you support State enforcement of penalties and sanctions to control pollution of the environment? Aylmer, Yes, much legislation is already on the books but vague enforcement has caused ineffectual results. The "Fault-Fixing" has to be more clearly defined so that the responsible polluters can be brought to task and penalized. Cleveland, yes, I support strong enforcement of any laws that have been adopted

Now! No matter which of the six savings plans you have at Fairhaven Savings, you get instant interest plus daily compounding of interest. It's now payable monthly, instead of quarterly.

Just think! You enjoy instant interest, which is interest earned from day of deposit (and that can be any day), to the day of withdrawal.

Now, interest on each and every one of our accounts is compounded daily, and paid on the second Monday of each month. Let's review the accounts: Regular Savings . . . 90-Day Notice . . . Daily Interest . . . and the three Term Deposit Certificates.

It all adds up to extra cash going into your account.

Increases in State-collected taxes for the purpose of increased aid to cities and towns? Yes, I expect that the state tax commission will provide a plan to increase state aid to cities and towns to relieve the real estate tax assessments.

State enforcement of penalties and sanctions to control pollution of the environment: Yes, legislation is providing penalties and controls currently.

A Look Back...

The terrible destruction wrought upon the trees of Mattapoisett is not evident today but the 1938 hurricane virtually destroyed the appearance of a town famous for its shade. Thanks to the 32 years of continuing planting, the maturing maples, oaks and other shade trees are now making the streets of the village a cool and attractive approximation of a former time. In a single, devastating blow, the great elms that met overhead to form tunnels of green were uprooted, broken and weakened for the scourge of Dutch Elm disease. These photos were found by Mrs. Lemuel LeBaron and given to us. She believes that they were taken by Win Jenney.

The scene is the corner of Main and Water Streets looking southwest. The Munro home is the house on the corner. The "before" photo shows the trees obscuring the house. The "after" shot reveals the entire home. Townspeople will recall the shocking effect of this denuding of the leaf cover. Overnight the town had the appearance of a desert in comparison. It has taken 30 years of planning, planting and care to recover some of the former glory of a town. Rather an interesting thought to those youth who believe the ecology was discovered a year or two ago.

5-Time Winner!

MYC WINNER OF BEETLE BOWL

Mattapoisett Yacht Club chalks up another victory! It becomes a five-time consecutive winner in the annual Buzzards Bay Beetle Bowl.

Postponed August 20th because of stormy weather, the contest was re-scheduled for Sunday, August 27th, and hosted this year by the Angelica Yacht Club. Each club was represented by a team of three skippers and sailed four races, two in the morning and two in the afternoon.

The Mattapoisett team of Susan McGowan, Harvey Pentleton and Phil McCarthy swept the first race in each division and continued on to build up a substantial lead.

Susan McGowan, in the Women's Division, placed first in all four races. Harvey Pentleton, in the Men's Division, earned one first place and three seconds, totaling 1/2 point behind top-scoring Don Morgan of Angelica. In the Junior Division Dave Crowley of the host club brought in two firsts and Cleve Heath of New Bedford one first, but Phil McCarthy of Mattapoisett battled it out to win over-all by 1 3/4 points.

Total points showed the Mattapoisett team far in the lead with 12 1/2 points on the low point system. The nearest challenger was Angelica with 25 3/4 points.

Alcohol & The Heart

ALCOHOLISM CAN DAMAGE THE HEART

The following article is the first of the 1970-1971 "Living With Your Heart" series released by the Massachusetts Heart Association, Inc.

by Peter M. Yurchak, M.D.

Assistant Physician, Massachusetts General Hospital, Assistant Professor of Medicine, Harvard Medical School.

A chronic alcoholic, with all the problems this term implies, may be inviting still another misfortune, heart disease. The heart has been found to be adversely affected by excessive alcohol in three ways.

While this does not mean that all of the approximately 200,000 chronic alcoholics in Massachusetts will find themselves heart patients, it does mean that many of them will be affected with heart problems. It is not widely recognized that alcohol can affect the heart; it is much better known that alcoholism is responsible for a number of other disease states -- psychiatric disorders, for example, or affections of the brain and nerves, or cirrhosis of the liver.

is that it may lead to malnutrition and deficiency of vitamins, particularly Vitamin B-1. In this disorder, the heart is enlarged and shows evidence of impaired function, although the volume of blood it pumps is above normal. This so-called "high-output heart failure" responds dramatically to the administration of Vitamin B-1, although certain abnormalities may persist. Diagnosis is established by specific blood tests, including one for a blood enzyme called transketolase.

A second way in which alcoholism affects the heart is the production of so-called cardiomyopathy, or "heart muscle disease". In this condition there is enlargement and failure of the heart, together with disturbances of heart rhythm. Examination of hearts showing this disease show degenerative changes, and the special technique of electron microscopy has disclosed abnormal deposits within the heart muscle cells in some instances. Response to ordinary measures of treatment is often disappointing, and maximum improvement depends upon complete abstinence from alcohol.

LIVER-RELATED PROBLEMS

The third way in which alcohol impairs cardiac function is through changes that occur in the circulation as a result of cirrhosis of the liver. A state of heart failure may be produced, and the amount of oxygen carried in arterial blood may be reduced. Since the liver detoxifies alcohol, liver disease increases the direct toxic effect of alcohol on the heart. And since the liver disease itself improves only with abstinence, the heart disease related to it requires the same measure.

Diagnosis of any of these heart diseases and the degree to which alcohol may be involved is often difficult because the patient almost invariably tends to minimize or deny his alcohol consumption. Thus, the relief of symptoms which might come with abstinence is often not achieved by the patient who may continue drinking (and denying it).

In addition, there are individuals with existing coronary disease who endanger themselves unnecessarily by an excessive consumption of alcohol when they are using nitroglycerine for relief of cardiac pain. This combination can result in a dangerous fall in blood pressure.

HEART/ALCOHOL RESEARCH

The exact mechanism by which alcohol produces these changes is uncertain. Many studies are in progress at present -- supported by organizations such as the Massachusetts Heart Association -- which hope to find answers to these complicated interactions. One such study on patients who consume large quantities of beer and who have a form of severe heart failure which is resistive to therapy suggests that substances present in very small amounts as a consequence of the brewing process may play a role in this type of heart disease. But this is far from certain. Another group of researchers have demonstrated that intravenous injections of alcohol alter metabolism of the heart.

In spite of this intensive study by various researchers, much remains to be learned. Heart disease caused by alcoholism and heart disease aggravated by excessive consumption of alcohol are both serious medical problems which must be given adequate consideration if they are to be solved.

GERRY STUDDS the candidate's stand

"I propose an immediate end to our military involvement in South East Asia. Over 41,000 American lives and untold billions of dollars have been lost in a war which has no bearing on our national security and which has been fought in defense of a corrupt, dictatorial and unrepresentative government—and without a declaration of war by Congress. It has crippled our ability to attend to vital domestic problems and caused inflationary havoc in our economy. It is militarily unwinnable and it should be ended—not two years, or four years, or ten years from now, as 'Vietnamization' would seem to imply—not transferred to Laos or Cambodia or Thailand, as 'Vietnamization' apparently entails—not pending appropriate decisions in Saigon and Hanoi, as 'Vietnamization' clearly requires—but now, by a decision made in Washington with the assistance and support of an American people who demand it.

"Then we can turn to our work here at home—and once again enlist the energy and talent and enthusiasm of our young people in the struggle for constructive change within our political system.

"I propose that we face our housing crisis squarely, devising new methods of assisting people in the purchase and rehabilitation of their own homes and encouraging further research into the possibilities for decent low-cost housing;

". . . that we act now to appropriate the funds necessary to pay teachers decent salaries and to provide minimally adequate facilities for all of our schools;

". . . that we act now to provide a comprehensive national system of health care;

". . . and that we do away with the complex, humiliating and wasteful maze of existing welfare programs and guarantee every American a minimally adequate income, while training and finding employment for those few people currently on welfare who are able to work."

Gerry Studds has been to Washington before, on the White House staff during the Kennedy administration and as a legislative assistant in the Senate.

You'll know where he stands on every issue, and you'll know why. That's the way it ought to be.

SHARK SCARE HALTS SWIMMING

Reported sighting of sharks in Mattapoisett harbor, off Todd's wharf at the foot of North St., halted swimming on Saturday. Boats criss crossed the anchorage in search for much of the afternoon but failed to discover them again. Swimmers were warned out of the water at the Town beach while the hunt was on and for the rest of the day. The beach was open for swimming Sunday.
